SETTLERS MAKE THE DESERT BLOOM

Farm fields in Quartet drew their irrigation water from the Eightmile Lateral, Creason Lateral, the Rutledge Lateral and the Five Mile Creek / Drain, and serve also as drains for fields along their routes. Typically, a central farm yard would be surrounded by pens and corrals for the animals, which in turn were surrounded by pastures and fields that provided grass, grains, and winter fodder for the cattle and horses necessary to operate the farm. These farms had modest homes with much larger barns to contain the winter food and protect equipment. As the area grew, the farms began to specialize with one or two cash crops while maintaining the interwoven subsistence farming practices.

EIGHTMILE LATERAL

Although the date of construction is unknown, the Eight Mile Lateral, appears on maps by 1896 and is an early example of gravity irrigation in the Boise Valley and its importance to the valley's agricultural roots.

CREASON LATERAL

The Creason Lateral was independently constructed in the early years of the 20th Century, but as with other small independent ditch systems, it was folded into the larger U.S. Reclamation Boise Project around 1914. The name is likely to have come from a local farmer and rancher, Harry C. Creason, who arrived in the Boise Valley in 1876 to homesteaded land.

RUTLEDGE LATERAL

There is some evidence that the Rutledge Lateral was excavated 1896 or 1897. Laterals are often named for prominent farmers to be served by the water when it is first excavated. In this case, the lateral may have been named in honor of local farmer Hugh Rutledge.

FIVE MILE CREEK / DRAIN

Five Mile Creek was one of three natural waterways that existed south of the Boise River before large-scale irrigation practices altered the landscape.

The CLG program is a dynamic partnership between local governments, the Idaho State Historic Preservation Office (SHPO), and the National Park Service (NPS), to assist diverse communities in preserving their unique historic character. One of the requirements assigned to the SHPO is the evaluation of CLG programs in their state; every CLG program should be evaluated at least once every four (4) years. In an effort to make this as straightforward and easy as possible, the Idaho SHPO has developed this form to assist in the evaluation process.

Please complete this questionnaire and return to the CLG Coordinator at:

Postal:	Email:
Pete L'Orange State Historic Preservation Office 210 Main Street Boise, ID 83702	pete.lorange@ishs.idaho.gov

Once you have returned the completed questionnaire and any additional documentation which may apply, SHPO Staff will review your responses and complete our portion of the review. Staff may contact you with addition questions or for any clarification. Once the SHPO's review is complete, we will send you a letter with our findings and a copy of the completed evaluation form for your records.

If you have any questions or concerns as you are completing this evaluation form, please contact: Pete L'Orange, Historic Preservation Planner/CLG Coordinator, by phone at (208) 488-7471 or by email at pete.lorange@ishs.idaho.gov immediately.

Program Strengths:

The City of Meridian is doing a lot of good work to ensure that historic preservation is a part of the City's character. The appointment members to the Historic Preservation Commission who meet the Secretary of the Interior's Professional Standards is an important part of those efforts, and our office would encourage the City to continue to make a committed historic preservation program.

Opportunities for Improvement:

The Idaho SHPO would like to see the City of Meridian do some more survey. It has been a number of years since the major survey and it would be good to either take on a new survey or to update a previous survey. Our office is available to assist with potential areas for future survey work.

Final SHPO Comments:

Overall, the Idaho SHPO is pleased with the status of the City of Meridian's historic preservation program. The City is in a strong position and appears to have a strong commission make up. The SHPO would like to see more survey, hopefully leading to more nominations to the National Register of Historic Places.

It is the determination of the Idaho State Historic Preservation Office that the City of Meridian MEETS the requirements of the Local Government program. The City of Meridian shall, therefore, RETAIN its status as a Certified Local Government.
